

Illustrative Map with ArcGIS Web AppBuilder

Find address or place

This map illustrates buffer regions around shellfish harvest and growing areas, marinas, and marine structures in relation to Georgia House Bill 833. 'Anchorage restriction areas' means those areas within the estuarine areas of this state in any location that lies within 300 feet of a marina, 150 feet from a marine structure other than a marina, or within 500 feet of approved commercial shellfish growing areas and designated public harvest areas as determined by the department.

Please zoom into an area of interest to see Anchorage restriction areas within navigable channels on the Georgia coast.

Disclaimer: This map is produced by the Georgia Department of Natural Resources for purpose of providing visual aid and illustrative context for the new long-term anchoring restrictions only. This map is not for determination of any official legal extents, boundaries, or any other legal determinations. Although every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of the information presented herein, the Coastal Resources Division does not guarantee that this map is error-free. Do not use this map for navigational purposes. The map and layers can change at any time in response to changes in law and policy.

☐ I agree to the above terms and conditions

I Agree